

Campus Bible Fellowship International

This fall, nearly 20 million young adults will attend college in the US. Encompassing distinctive interests, backgrounds, nationalities, and beliefs, college students comprise a diverse group. Within each college, subsets of students often exist, including athletes, medical students, cultural and language groups, artists, and musicians. Young adults from around the world attend college in the US, making campuses a mission field of international impact. Using God's Word, CBFi strategically partners with local churches to evangelize, disciple, encourage, and counsel these students.

NEEDS

Promising knowledge and higher education, undergraduate and post graduate institutions bombard young people with a humanistic, atheistic worldview, supplanting Truth with relativism and suppressing thoughts of God.

Most college students are asking the BIG QUESTION: "What do I want?" The real question that needs their eternal focus remains unattended: "What does God want?"

While many Christian ministries reach onto campuses, many unbelievers remain separated from gospel witnesses, and many believers unconnected to other Christians and local churches.

Additionally, local churches need partners acquainted with the specialized requirements of campus ministries to facilitate outreach to their local institutions.

HOW YOU CAN SERVE

- Missionaries are needed to partner with existing ministry locations as well as open new campus chapters of CBFi.
- Teachers are needed for large, small, and individual Bible studies. Evangelists are needed to share the gospel on campus in creative ways. Counselors are needed to apply God's word to sinful life choices with love.
- Musicians are needed to encourage and lead worship through Christ-honoring music. Conversationalists are needed for Conversational English Classes with international students.
- If you love college-aged young adults and desire to see them walking with God, CBFi needs you!
