

Cambodia

The country of Cambodia in Southeast Asia is dark in Buddhism. Ornate temples are abundant, and people observe many religious ceremonies. In addition, the number of Muslims is growing. Cambodians mix ancestor worship, fortune telling, and fear of spirits with their main religions. The history of the Pol Pot genocide (1975-1979) still weighs in the memory of those who survived. But the country is slowly developing its infrastructure, industry, and education.

NEEDS

Many Cambodians think Christians are the people who give away free rice or money or other gifts. They want to go to the “church” that gives them the most. Others think they can add Christ onto their Buddhism or other religion. Cambodia also has Mormons, Jehovah’s Witnesses, and other cults.

People need to hear and understand what true Christianity is. Christians need to be grounded in God’s Word to distinguish between truth and error. The lives of God’s people need to shine in the darkness. Missionaries are needed to make disciples in Cambodia. Prayer is needed for God’s work in hearts.

HOW YOU CAN SERVE

Is God calling you to share the gospel in the cities and towns of Cambodia? Men and women of God are needed to teach the Word of God, establish churches, train leaders, and write literature in the Khmer language.

God is opening doors through English teaching, literature sales, door-to-door evangelism, youth work, and medicine. Doctors, nurses, and paramedical professionals can work in the Cambodian hospitals, clinics, medical schools, and villages to present Christ.
